The title of this article is

✓ "Swimming With Gentle Giants."

The author of this article is

A Rachel Cartwright. This article expresses the problems today and population problems. Humpback whales are facing many problems

Today, the decline of whales, and the decline in whales.

I ✓ There are many problems with whales today. In this article the author says "Females are moving into deeper channels." One example is, that people are urbanizing the shore line. Which leads to noise which drives the whales away. Also, The traffic in the area will make more noise and cause them to move deeper also. Moreover, the larger vessels moving in the ocean contributes to the whales moving. Since whales have many problems today, we should work on helping save them.

The whales have faced a decline in population. The author has said, "The population looked to be inevitably bound for extinction."

What are the changing conditions affecting whales?
